Britain denounces Islamic State video showing “spies” shot

AN Islamic State video showing a young boy in military fatigues and an older masked militant who both spoke with British accents is “desperate propaganda from an organisation that is losing ground,” Prime Minister David Cameron said yesterday. The video, which could not be independently verified, also shows the killing of five men accused of spying for Britain. The masked man threatens Cameron and vows that Islamic State will one day occupy Britain before shooting one of the alleged spies in the head. The footage revived memories of “Jihadi John,” a British Islamic State member who appeared in several videos in which hostages were killed. See Inside

Failed Catalan Government makes another Spanish election more likely

Acting Catalan President Artur Mas.

Barcelona.— Catalan far-left party CUP said on Sunday it would not support acting regional head Artur Mas in his bid for another term, forcing new local elections and increasing the likelihood all Spaniards may have to return to the ballot box this year.

The drawn-out process of forming a government in Catalonia echoes the political stalemate gripping Spain at a national level following an inconclusive general election two weeks ago. The prospect of new elections in Catalonia, most likely in March, increases the likelihood of a second general election this year as the receding threat of a strong Catalan government seeking a split from Spain will reduce pressure on Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy's centre-right People's Party (PP) and the opposition Socialists to form a grand coalition. Inside
