

Majorca Daily Bulletin

Saturday, November 11 2017

1.10€ · Founded 1962 · N.16432 · Passeig de Mallorca 9 A, Palma 07011

Catalan speaker freed on bail but gagged for election campaign: P3

“We want our money,” EU tells Britain

THE European Union told Britain yesterday to spell out what it will pay Brussels for when it leaves the bloc in 2019 or face more delay in talks on future trade ties that are vital for British business.

After negotiations in Brussels, the first in a month, Brexit secretary David Davis said during a news conference with his EU counterpart Michel Barnier it was time for “political discussions” to break a deadlock that has left both sides frustrated about a lack of progress.

“Political” talks has in the past been code for prime minister Theresa May addressing fellow EU leaders directly, over the heads of Barnier and the EU executive, in order to square a circle in which Brussels will not address the future without a firm line from London on settling what the EU sees as past debts and May will not settle without assurances about future trade. May is due at a Brussels summit on 14-15 Dec. but EU officials insist that any breakthrough must be agreed at lower level first and weeks in advance to let the other 27 members agree a joint position. Progress in December is important for May as businesses seek clarity by the new year, when many will take investment decisions dependent on conditions after Brexit.

A British budget due on 22 Nov. will, however, complicate the task for May in persuading hardline Brexit supporters of any need to meet Brussels’ demand for tens of billions of euros to cover liabilities incurred in 44 years of EU membership. Barnier stressed that he was not looking for a number from London but for a clearer undertaking than May gave in September on how far Britain would “honour its obligations”.

Brexit secretary David Davis.

British Consulate gives Brexit update in Calvia: See Page 8 Inside

FORGED ALUMINIUM frying pans

Majorca Daily Bulletin

TODAY 24/26/28cm lid

FOR ONLY ~~74.95€~~ 9€ + COUPON

9€

18cm lid by 11/11