Spain would offer UK Brexit extension, but needs explanation of new agreement, says Spain Foreign Ministry

Warsaw.—Spain thinks the EU should be ready to offer Britain an extension of the Brexit process, but London must first explain how it will seek a new agreement, Spain's Foreign Minister Josep Borrell said at an event in Warsaw yesterday.

"To move to another kind of agreement they need time and I think we should be ready to give them more time. But they need to do something more than that, they need to explain how they are going to look for a new agreement," Borrell said, speaking at the College of Europe campus in Warsaw.

Britain would need to organise European Parliament elections if there is no agreement in the short-term, he added.
