UK May's Brexit approach is "national embarrassment," says Labour leader

The leader of Britain's opposition Labour Party, Jeremy Corbyn, said yesterday that Prime Minister Theresa May's approach to Brexit had become "a national embarrassment" that risked Britain leaving the European Union without an agreement. "The government's approach to Brexit has now become a national embarrassment," Corbyn said. "Despite the clearly expressed will of this House (of Commons), we will still face the prospect of a disastrous no-deal Brexit."

SANCHEZ COULD BE RETURNED AS PRIME MINISTER

Spain's socialists increase their lead ahead of April 28 vote, says poll

● Spain's Socialists increased their lead in a poll published yesterday in newspaper ABC with 30.9 percent of votes, equivalent to between 131 and 134 seats in the 350-seat parliament, but fell short of a majority ahead of a general election on April 28.

A coalition of three right-wing parties - People's Party (PP), Ciudadanos and far-right Vox - would get 46.5 percent of votes, equivalent to between 157 and 166 seats, but would also be short of the 176 seats needed to secure an outright parliamentary majority, according to the poll conducted by GAD3. The Socialists' support has increased by 0.3 percent since a previous poll by GAD3 published by ABC on March 10, while all the other major parties have seen their votes decrease.

PP's support has been reduced by 0.2 percent, Ciudadanos by 0.1, Podemos by 0.5 and Vox by 0.6.

Socialist Pedro Sanchez could clinch a majority to get re-elected as prime minister if he won the support of the array of parties, including far-left Podemos and Catalan pro-independence parties, that backed him last June when he won a vote of confidence against PP's government at the time.
