Light display at Palma Cathedral

The spectacular natural light phenomenon which is known as Vuit de la Seu or the Festa de la Llum was on show at Palma Cathedral yesterday. It happens twice a year on the Feast of San Martín on November 11 and the Candelmas Festival on February 2, when the sun shines through the rose window and reflects a perfect copy of the image underneath the rosette on the opposite wall of the Cathedral.

SOS FROM NAUTICAL INDUSTRY

- Carmen Planas, president of the CAEB Confederation on Balearic Business Associations, and Santiago Mayol, president of the APEAM association of maritime businesses, met to discuss their shared concern for the “uncertain future of the Balearic nautical sector”.

SPAIN TO DEMAND NEGATIVE PCR TEST FOR TRAVELLERS FROM HIGH-RISK COUNTRIES

SPAIN will demand a negative PCR test taken within 72 hours for all travellers arriving from countries with a high risk of contracting the coronavirus from November 23, the Health Ministry said last night.

One of Europe's main COVID-19 hotspots, Spain had increasingly become an exception in the region for its policy of - so far - not asking visitors to provide a PCR test on arrival.

Spain will use European Union criteria to define which countries are classified as high-risk, the ministry said.

Wave of migrant arrivals leaves 2,000 stranded in Gran Canaria

Madrid.—More than 2,000 African migrants were stranded in a dockside camp on the Spanish island of Gran Canaria after a wave of arrivals overwhelmed local authorities' capacity to house them.

“It's a disaster. There's a huge spike in arrivals and the situation is very complicated,” said Cristina Ruiz, a spokeswoman for the national government on the islands. Across the Canary Islands archipelago, more than 2,600 people arrived in 73 boats between Saturday and Monday, she said, adding that the 1,461 who arrived on Saturday marked a new daily record. Seeking relief from the sun blazing down on the port of Arguineguin in the south of Gran Canaria, some of the migrants fashioned shelters out of Red-Cross blankets propped up by plastic fencing.
