British-owned helicopter company flying high on Majorca: See Sunday Interview

BIG BRITISH INVESTMENT ON MAJORCA

● It had been feared that Brexit would dent British investment on the island.....this is far from the case and infact British spending has reached an all time high with some of the biggest names in corporate Britain making big acquisitions.

● Sir Richard Branson will be investing millions of euros on the island in a new hotel venture in Banyalbufar. He has been given permission to open a 29 room hotel at his Son Bunyola estate.

● British billionaires Simon and David Reuben have bought 900 hectares of land close to Cala Romantica adding to the investments they have already on Ibiza over recent years.

Palma.—Majorca has been given a major vote of confidence in these difficult times by some of Britain ´s leading business people. It has also eased fears locally over the impact of Brexit on British investment on the island.

As we exclusively reported yesterday Sir Richard Branson has been given permission to build a 29 room hotel at his Son Bunyola estate in Banyalbufar.

British billionaires Simon and David Reuben have bought a 900 hectare plot of land on the east coast of Majorca.

A British company has bought the building of the emblematic Casa Roca shop in the centre of Palma which it will transform into a luxury hotel.

British businesswoman Margaret Whittaker has big plans for her House of Son Amar leisure centre on the outskirts of Palma. Some building work has already been completed and they hope to open later this year. British building giant Taylor Wimpey has recently announced plans for a new development in La Rapita, adding to the already substantial investments they have made on the island.

Numerous other British companies have already big investments on the island and some of Britain ´s richest people own homes on the island including Sir Jim Ratcliffe and Mike Ashley.
